>"Alright everyone, sit down!" Chief Bogo instructed as he read a piece of paper. "Today, we are expecting a new Deputy Chief."

"What's his name?" Officer Grizzoli asked excitedly.

"It says.. his name will be.. Deputy Kaiser." Bogo said while he still read the paper. "His species is a Siberian Husky, he has had proper training, and lastly, I have seen him before."

As everyone else was talking about Deputy Kaiser full of joy, Judy was the only one who kept silent.

_"Deputy Kaiser, eh? Never heard of him. I wonder if he would be nice as Bogo.." _She thought. Judy then raised her hand.

"Yes, Officer Hopps?" Bogo replied to Judy's raised hand.

"When will he arrive?" she asked.

Bogo read the piece of paper until he found the time that Deputy Kaiser was arriving.

"Approximantly.. 12 o'clock." Bogo said with a smile. Even Chief Bogo was excited to see the new Deputy Chief.

Everyone seemed happy with that, especially Judy.

"Okay, I'm going to give you all some assignments." Chief Bogo opened a red file.

"Grizzoli, Higgins, and Wolford, you are patrolling in Downtown. Snarlof, Anderson, and McHorn, your patrolling at Savanna Central. Hopps, Wilde, and Fangmeyer, your patrolling at Tundratown. Trunkaby, Johnson, and Delgato, your patrolling at Rainforest District. And finally, Francine, your patrolling at Sahara Square. Dismissed."

As everyone walked out of the room, Bogo could hear whispers about Deputy Kaiser and some other things, too.

>Meanwhile in Tundratown, all the three officers assigned to patrol there were in a police car, driving slowly around the area.

"And there was this one time my mom locked her keys in the car, and had to smash the window to get them out!" Judy said.

Everyone laughed.

"That sounded a bit crazy, Judy! Why didn't they pick the lock instead?" Officer Fangmeyer asked while he watched the road.

"I guess they either didn't have the right tools, or they didn't know how to do it." Judy replied, sipping her favorite coffee.

Nick chuckled as he glanced back at Judy.

"Sometimes that happens." he said.

"And I had to clean the dishes for my parents for breaking a plate when I was about.. eight." Fangmeyer said.

Judy and Nick both chuckled while Fangmeyer slowly stopped the car.

"Judy, I think that otter over there is doing something suspicious.." he said.

Judy saw what he was doing. With her excellent sense of hearing, she could tell what he was up to.

"I can deal with this." She said and hopped out of the car.

Three minutes later, she came back.

"Nothing suspicious going on with him.." Judy said as she looked on at him. "Let's go."

Fangmeyer sped up the car slowly to 20 MPH.

"I'm a b-bit c-cold, can you p-please turn up the h-heat?" Nick asked.

"Of course." Fangmeyer turned the dial up.

"It's very cold around here, so no wonder your cold." Judy said.

Nick eventually stopped shivering, and he let out a sigh of relief. Judy yawned before finishing her coffee.

"You know, one of my friends suffered hypothermia for wearing only a t-shirt and shorts here, and he nearly died." Fangmeyer said with a bit of sorrow.

"When did that happen?" Judy asked with a shocked look.

"I don't even remember.. Maybe about two years ago." he replied.

Judy's look then went back to normal. She thought about all the other people who suffered from hypothermia here. Nick stretched and reached for a packet of breath mints he got from the vending machine before he went on duty.

"Anyone want a breath mint?" Nick said with a smile.

"No thanks, I'm okay." Judy replied.

"Don't mind if I do." Fangmeyer said and took one out of the packet. "Thanks."

"Don't mention it." Nick said and then ate one himself.

"I'm gonna take a little nap.." Judy said and then rested her head against the window and fell asleep within a matter of seconds.

Fangmeyer looked at her with a smile, then went back to watching the road.

"Hey.. There's another lawbreaker over there!" he said and stopped the car.

"I'll take care of it this time." Nick said and got out.

>There it is. The first chapter on my first ever Zootopia fanfiction. It was great writing this, and I can't WAIT to write chapter two! :)

2. Arrival

Chapter Two: Arrival

>"10-4, suspect is now in custody." Fangmeyer said on the radio.

Judy woke up.

"Who's the suspect this time.." Judy said as she looked at him.

"A fox caught doing graffiti on a wall." Nick said, smiling.

Fangmeyer drove back to the police station to hand him in. But when they arrived, Chief Bogo was calling everyone to the briefing room.

"I think the new deputy chief is arriving." Fangmeyer smiled and headed over to the briefing room.

>"Everybody sit." Chief Bogo instructed to his officers. "I think you all know what time it is."

"Time to introduce the deputy chief?" Grizzoli asked.

"Exactly." Bogo replied.

As the rest of the officers sat down, Bogo read another piece of paper. Then everyone heard a knock on the door.

"Ah, here he is." Bogo said. "Everybody, introducing Deputy Kaiser!"

Judy and all the others looked at the door as Deputy Kaiser walked in.

Deputy Kaiser wore a standard police uniform, with three stars on each side of his collar. His utility belt was the same as Bogo's, and his fur was gray and white.

"Hello everybody." he said. "I'm going to be your new Deputy Chief from now on."

Kaiser took out a list he was given by Bogo. As he read it, he noticed something important.

"We will have a training course tomorrow at 2:15 pm. It is required that everyone comes." Kaiser said as he cleared his throat.

_"He looks really nice to be a deputy.." _Nick thought.

"Dismissed." Chief Bogo said as he looked at Kaiser with a smile.

Everyone walked out, except Judy.

"Can i ask you a question, sir?" she asked Kaiser.

"Of course." he replied.

"Do you think that the ZPD will be better with you here?" Judy said as she looked at Kaiser.

Kaiser seemed amused. He had never been asked this question before, but he wanted to reply.

"Of course, i bet everyone in the ZPD will think that." He replied. "Now i think you should get back on duty. Zootopia needs you!" He said, smiling.

Judy smiled in reply, then walked out of the room and closed the door.

_"I haven't seen a bunny before in the ZPD.." _Kaiser thought.

>Judy was assigned to Tundratown again, with the same people as before.

"And that was how I ended up in hospital with a broken arm." Nick said.

"That didn't sound good at all." Fangmeyer said as he watched for any lawbreakers around the area.

Nick pulled out a small green packet from his pocket. But before he could open the container, the car suddenly stopped at a red light, spilling a few breath mints.

"Sorry." Fangmeyer said.

"So how did Kaiser get a job here?" Judy asked.

Everyone had no idea. But before Judy could say something, the radio crackled.

"Attention all units, we have a 10-31 at Family Florists." the radio said.

"We should get going." Fangmeyer said before he turned on the sirens and raced down the street. But by the time they arrived, the suspect was nowhere to be found. Nick asked the shopkeeper, Mrs. Rider, what happened.

"He just grabbed most of my flowers, and took off! That was it!" Mrs. Rider said in a panicked mood.

"Please calm down Mrs. Rider, we will take care of this." Nick said calmly.

Nick got back in the car, ready to tell everyone else who the suspect was and what happened.

"Interesting to know." Fangmeyer said, sipping a bottle of water.

"Same here." Judy replied.

Fangmeyer started the car and drove around trying to find the suspect. They eventually found a small fox, and much to Nick's surprise, it was Finnick.

"Finnick, stealing is against the law." Nick told him. "You are under arrest." Nick then placed him in handcuffs.

"But we used to b-" Finnick was cut off by Nick.

"I don't want to hear it." Nick placed Finnick in the car, and Judy was assigned to take the flowers back to the florist.

>At the end of the day, Judy, Nick, and even Fangmeyer was tired from working all day.

"I think we should get some rest." Nick said. "Our shift is over, thank goodness."

Judy and Fangmeyer agreed, and they all went home. By the time Judy got home, it was already 6:30 pm, so she ate a few carrots for a snack, and before she could change clothes, she heard something, but she didn't know what it was at first, then she realised it was just her noisy neighbours. After she got changed, she flopped straight onto her bed, and fell asleep within five seconds.

>There you have it, Chapter 2! You might think that this story is starting off pretty lame (well, some of you), but it will get interesting towards the end!
